Reading Comprehension & Summary Making (120 Marks)

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

"This condition in young adults is usually caused by a viral or bacterial infection," explained a doctor. Tragedy struck recently when a 20-year-old college student died during a mountain expedition. Nazri, together with a group of students and a trainer, had camped the night before at the base of the 1463-metre Gunung Nuang. They made the ascent the next morning and reached the peak by noon. After a short rest and light meal, they began their descent. Nazri complained of feeling dizzy. He collapsed soon after and never regained consciousness. The post-mortem carried out at the hospital some five hours later revealed that Nazri had died of an inflammation of the heart muscle.

All participants of a mountain expedition should be aware of their physical conditions well enough. Those who have a slight fever, cold, flu or headache are advised to refrain from indulging in vigorous exercise like mountain climbing. Those with a history of heart problems should consult a doctor first before taking part in strenuous activity. Those who experience dizziness or breathlessness when they exercise should take precaution. Even those who think they are healthy enough should ensure that are medically fit. Very often, people do not realize that they have heart problems until something happens. First-timers should go on regular hikes on hills and gradually progress from there.

Besides the physical aspects, all mountain climbers must be mentally prepared too. This calls for an attentive and open mind. They also need to have the right gear and sufficient food and water.

A) From a, b, c and d choose the correct answer (50Marks):

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

Helicopters were developed during the first half- century of flight. With the Focke-Wulff 61, the first operational helicopter was in 1936. Helicopters started with limited production, but in 1942, a full scale production of helicopters started with 131 aircrafts built. Though earlier designs used more than one rotor, the signal main rotor to be the helicopter recognized design world wild.

Helicopters are very different from airplanes. They can do three things that airplanes can't do. First, when airplanes move upward, they must also move forward, but helicopters can move straight up without moving ahead. Second, helicopters can fly backward, which airplanes can't do. Third, helicopters can use their rotors to hover in the air and stay in one place which is impossible for airplanes.

Because helicopters can perform actions that airplanes can't do, they are used for different tasks. Since helicopters can take off without moving forward, they don't need a runway for takeoff. They are used in congested areas where there no room for airplanes or in isolated areas, which don't have airports. They can hover in the sky, therefore, they are used in firefighting missions to drop water on fires they are used in logging operation to lift trees out of forests. Helicopters are used as ambulance for emergency medical assistance in situations when an ambulance cannot easily or quickly reach the scene, or cannot transport the patient to a medical facility in time. Helicopters are also used when a patient needs to be transported between medical facilities and air transportation is the most practical method for the safety of the patient. Air ambulance helicopters are equipped to provide medical treatment to a patient while in flight. Most coastguard operations rely on helicopters in their rescue operations. The police use helicopters in some countries to follow suspects on the ground or to search for cars. Oil companies charter helicopters to move workers and parts quickly to remote drilling sites located out to sea or in remote locations. Of course, their design and capabilities made helicopters widely in use.

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

Travel in space is one of the greatest adventures in history. For hundreds of years, people dreamt about travelling in space, just as they dreamt of flying.

Space scientists were always looking for the possibility of sending human beings into outer space. After experimenting with animals, it was time for the first manned space mission. The first successful manned space mission was launched by Russia on April 12,1961, carrying a young man Known as Yuri Gagarin. The spacecraft was Vostok 1, and it orbited around the earth in 1 hour 48 minutes. One month later, the united states launched their first manned space mission with astronaut Alan Shepard, who managed to complete suborbital flight. John Glen achieved his first flight on February 20,1962.

Space travel has been possible only since suitable rockets were developed in the 1950s. Space travel has many problems. In the past, two problems were more difficult than any others. The first was making an engine that was able to work in space, where there is no oxygen. The other was making an engine powerful enough. Both of these problems were solved by the development of the rocket.

No petrol-engined aircraft can fly in space. A rocket engine is more powerful than any other type of engines. It carries its own oxygen which needed to burn its fuel. It can move a spaceship fast enough to escape the gravity of earth. The force of gravity makes objects fall to the ground when they are dropped. The minimum speed required to escape from this gravity is 40,000 kilometers an hour.

The first objects carried into space by rockets were satellites and probes. Later, human being travelled into space in spaceships. Rockets carried these objects into space. Now they travel round the earth like artificial moons. The satellites and probes help scientists to forecast future weather conditions. They also carry radio and television broadcasts to every country in the world. Some take pictures of other planets, the sun, black holes, dark matter or faraway galaxies. These pictures help scientists better understand the solar system and universe. Still other satellites are used mainly for communications such as beaming TV signals and phone calls around the world.
