Salem was a very rich man, but he never spent any of his money. He was scared that someone would steal it. He pretended to be poor and wore old clothes. Although people laughed at him, he only cared about his money.

One day, he bought a big lump of gold. He hid it in a hole by a tree. Every night, he went to the hole to look at it.

But one night, a thief saw Salem looking at his gold. When Salem went home, the thief picked up the lump of gold, slipped it into his bag and ran away!

The next day, Salem didn't find his gold. Salem cried loudly and a wise old man heard him. Salem told him that he got stolen. "Don't worry," he said. "Get a big stone and put it in the hole by the tree". "Why?" said Salem. The wise man asked Salem: "What did you do with your lump of gold?" "I sat and looked at it every day." said Salem. "Exactly." said the wise old man. "You can do exactly the same with a stone". Salem thought for a moment then said, "Yes, you're right. I should have used that gold to make me happy.
